MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

INTRODUCTION

In recent months considerable interest has been manifested by the American fishery industry in obtaining information relative to Mexican fishery legislation. The latest compilation of Mexican fishery laws was published in Spanish in 1939 by the Mexican Government and it did not contain all of the laws then in effect.

As the author was unable to find any source containing a complete codification of Mexican fishery legislation, he resorted to reviewing the Daily Mexican Government Journal, "Diario Oficial", wherein all legislation is published. The "Diario Oficial" has been searched for the present work from January, 1925 through April 1947. This report contains, in addition to what is believed to be a complete set of laws pertaining to marine fisheries, pertinent portions of the laws on the subjects of communications, territorial waters, import and export duties and cooperatives.

There are two sections to this report. The first section contains a brief discussion of Mexican legislation considered to be of interest to the American fishery industry. The second section consists of 73 appendices wherein the various Mexican laws are given in translation.

Some of the translations are from records of the United States Government. The others were made jointly by Miss Janet Part, Clerk of the United States Fishery Mission to Mexico, and the author. All translations are unofficial.

The appendices, unless otherwise mentioned on the first page of each, are currently up to date as of April 30, 1947. It should be noted that since the dates of enactment of many of these laws, the control of the fisheries has been transferred on several occasions to different branches of the Mexican Government. At present, control lies with Directorate General of Fisheries and Allied Industries of the Ministry of Marine (Secretaria de Marina, Direccion General de Pesca e Industrias Conexas). Therefore, wherever mention is made of the Ministry of Agriculture and Development, the Department of Marine or the Department of Forestry, Hunting and Fishing, the authority originally granted these various agencies now is vested in the organizations mentioned in the preceding sentence.

GENERAL

Mexican legislative thought with respect to the fisheries is divergent in several major aspects from that prevalent in the United States. The differences stem from the Spanish heritage of a centralized government ruled by a monarch as against the American concept of sovereign states relinquishing certain rights to the Federal Government. The Mexican principles are reflected in her fishery legislation which differs from that of the United States primarily as follows:

1. Complete control of the fisheries is vested in the Federal Government.
2. The executive branch has great authority. Other than the basic legislation, which is approved by the Congress, fishery regulations are established by executive orders or decrees. With the exception of one instance the agents of the executive branch of government may determine the penalties for all violations of the fishery laws.
3. Special privileges are granted individuals or certain groups of individuals.

Mexico's claim of nine nautical miles for territorial waters as against the United States claim of three does not arise from the same source as do those general principles mentioned above.

Mexico has three general laws covering fishing activities, (the Fishery Law of August 31, 1932, Appendix I; the Regulation of the Fishing Law of January 27, 1933, Appendix II; and the Law of the Pacific Ocean and Gulf of California of December 26, 1938, Appendix III); two tax laws (Tariff Act of January 20, 1933, Appendix IV; and Tariff for Commercial and Sport Fishing of November 17, 1939, Appendix V); and a number of special decrees and orders. The first two mentioned laws and the first mentioned tariff act govern fishing activities throughout the Republic, whereas the Law of December 26, 1938 and the Tariff of November 17, 1939 are special in their application, pertaining only to foreign boats and only to the waters of the Pacific Ocean and the Gulf of California. No special acts have been created covering fishing by foreign boats in the waters of the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea, hence the Law of August 31, 1932, the Regulation of January 27, 1933, and the Tariff of January 20, 1933, apply to these latter waters.

The ownership of territorial waters is vested in the Federal Government and by inference so are the fishery products contained within these waters. This is established by Article 27 of the Constitution (Appendix VI), paragraph 4 of which begins:

From this comes the fact that the states have no jurisdiction over the fisheries and all laws pertaining to the fisheries are of federal origin. This is further established by Articles 6, 7 and 11 of the Law of August 31, 1932 (Appendix I). Likewise the Federal Government is the only authority that can tax the fisheries. (Appendix I, Art. 11)

The above practice is considerably at divergence with that of the United States where it is generally recognized that the individual states have control of the fisheries within their borders.

In Mexico the federal power is supreme and extremely broad in its coverage as evidenced by Article 7 of the 1932 Law which states:

"..... the Federal Government may at any time restrict, limit and regulate fishing, as regards the intensity of the activities devoted to it, the number of persons engaged in it, the times when it may be effected, and the species which may be caught."

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

In accordance with Mexican theory, the agencies empowered to enforce the fishery regulations also as a rule have greater powers than do similar agencies in the United States. The authority for enforcing the above cited Article 7 is delegated to the ministry in charge of fisheries and according to Article 29 of the Law of August 31, 1932 (Appendix I) the same agency shall decide all penalties for violations of the fishery laws. No provision is made for court trial with the exception of the instances wherein a boat may be found fishing without permit (Appendix II, Arts. 119 and 120).

Mexico has various balances and counterbalances amongst several ministries in connection with the fisheries. For example, both the Ministry of Marine and the Ministry of Communications and Public Works must approve fishing enterprises (Appendix I, Art. 8 and Appendix VII, Art. 8). Similarly the Ministry of Treasury and Public Credit collects taxes and supervises fishing activities for fiscal purposes in foreign and local ports (Appendix III, Art. 11).

OPERATION OF FOREIGN BOATS

Inasmuch as the people of Mexico have not entered into fishing enterprises to any great extent except in recent years the Government, as a means of obtaining revenue, has allowed foreign boats (these boats have been almost exclusively American) to fish within the territorial waters of Mexico. The American shrimp boats recently working Mexican waters in the Gulf of Mexico were not paying any revenue to the Federal Government and this was one of the primary reasons for prohibiting these boats from operating. Peculiarly enough, because shrimp are reserved for cooperative fishermen and because these fishermen have special privileges there is no way at present whereby foreign boats can be permitted to catch shrimp and still pay the revenue the Government believes her due. To overcome this anomaly new legislation will have to be enacted.

The continuance of foreign fishing boats in Mexican waters is permitted merely by sufferance. Article 193 of the Law of General Ways of Communication (Appendix VII) reads:

"Although the privileges mentioned in this article constitute an exclusive prerogative for Mexican merchants ships, foreign ships with the permission of the Ministry of Communications, as long as the latter deems it advisable, may:

"..... IV. Effect fishing services in national waters

It was on the basis of this article that all foreign boats were recently excluded from fishing in Mexican waters, with the exception of those specifically provided for under the December 26, 1938 Law. As the 1938 Law covers only the West Coast of Mexico, all fishing by foreign boats in Mexican waters of the Gulf of Mexico has been suspended.

Tuna

The Law of December 26, 1938 (Appendix III) was created to cover the special case of boats hailing from California ports, fishing in Mexican waters, and discharging their products in California ports. It was designed primarily for the tuna fleet although market boats were also taken into consideration. The market boats generally sail from San Diego, California to nearby Mexican waters for fish for the fresh-market trade.

Boats operating under this act must comply with all its provisions and in addition with those of any other act in force (Appendix III, Art. 2-IV, and Art. 15). Such boats consequently must have permits from both the Ministry of Communications and the Ministry of Marine.

The species of fishes which can be taken are limited by Article 1 to:

"..... species which can be packed and all those which do not require a special authorization."

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

Those species requiring special permits according to Articles 72 to 101 of the Regulation of January 27, 1933 (Appendix II) are: whales, lobsters, shrimp, pearl oysters, abalones, turtles, alligators, seaweed, totoaba and sponges. More recently the sharks have been classified as requiring special permits (Appendix VIII). None of the above species, therefore, can be taken by foreign boats operating under the Law of December 26, 1938.

Fishing permits are either local, e. g., for one federal entity, or general, e.g., for two or more federal entities (Appendix I, Art. 20, and Appendix II, Arts. 21-24). A general permit must be secured to fish under the provisions of the Law of December 26, 1938 (Appendix III, Art. 2-J). In addition, various other permits must be obtained, namely: annual use of foreign boats, annual registry of vessel, annual registry of nets, annual identification cards for fishermen, and "Via la pesca" clearances for each trip (Appendix V). These various permits are designed for the purpose of raising revenue and also to enable the Mexican Government to work with groups of fishermen rather than through individuals. Apparently, and probably justifiably so, the Mexicans believe that an individual is not nearly so responsible as a group of individuals. For this reason they encourage the permissionnaire system.

Under the 1938 Law, a permissionnaire is an individual or an organization standing responsible for a group of boats fishing in Mexican waters. The permissionnaire is required to post a cash guarantee which may amount to 50,000.00 pesos (Appendix I, Art. 23; Appendix III, Art. 5-V, and Appendix II, Art. 43). The permissionnaire is jointly and severally responsible for the acts of any fisherman operating by means of his permit (Appendix I, Art. 27 and Appendix II, Art. 124). The permits must be renewed annually, and on all appears the famous "Calvo" clause (Appendix II, Art. 24, Appendix VI and Appendix II, Art. 29). This latter is very nicely stated in Article 29 of the Regulation of January 27, 1933, which reads:

"When the holder of a concession or permit is a foreign company, individual or juridical entity, the following clause shall be inserted: 'The concessionnaire or licensee expressly declares that, for all purposes of this authorization, he agrees to consider himself as a Mexican and therefore he shall not enjoy, with relation to its validity, interpretation and fulfillment, any greater rights or privileges than those granted by Mexican laws to citizens of the Republic. Consequently he renounces, for the purposes of this authorization, all his rights as a foreigner and binds himself especially not to request the diplomatic intervention of his country in anything relating thereto. He agrees, also, that this clause is an essential condition of his authorization and that non-observance thereof will cause such authorization to become null and void and make him liable, in addition, to the loss in favor of the Nation, of any works or investments that he may have made.'"

The permissionnaire can probably best be described as a ship's broker or agent with many responsibilities and very few privileges. Probably his most important privilege is that of taking under his wing as many boats as he deems fit. As a matter of fact, the more boats he has, the more money he makes, as a fee is levied on each boat for each trip. He secures the various licenses required by the Mexican Government and makes the necessary reports for the boat captains and in turn is responsible to the Mexican Government for the actions of the boats operating under his permit.

Each permissionnaire pays annually a maximum of 500.00 pesos for a general fishing permit and 2,000.00 pesos for use of foreign boats. If these permits are taken out in the United States there is an additional 25% charge as stipulated in Article 6 of the Tariff of November 17, 1939 (Appendix V). These fees are on a graduated scale depending on the tonnage of the boat, varying for the general permit from 50.00 pesos to 500.00 pesos for boats from two tons and under to boats of more than 200 tons, and for the use of foreign boats, from 50.00 pesos to 2,000.00 pesos for boats of two tons or less to those exceeding 100 tons net registered capacity (Appendix V, Art. 1-I and -II).

Article 1 of the 1939 Tariff provides:

"When two or more boats are used, the tonnage is taken together and payment of the fees fixed in the two preceding subheadings is made on the basis of the total tonnage."

The two subheadings referred to are those for general permits and use of foreign boats.

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

It is this quoted provision, together with the cash bond requirement, that creates the permissionnaires.

Any one of the owners of the larger tuna boats, if he desired to operate in Mexico on his own would have to pay this 2,500.00 peso annual fee in addition to depositing a cash bond of up to 50,000.00 pesos. There is no point whatsoever in one individual carrying this burden if it can be shared amongst a group.

As has been stated, the permissionnaire is responsible to the fisherman for obtaining the latter's permit to fish in Mexican waters and he is also responsible to the Mexican Government for the compliance by the fishermen with all Mexican regulations. The Mexican fishery and treasury offices in California are for the purpose of issuing the necessary permits, seeing that the Mexican regulations are complied with, and collecting the revenue due the Mexican Government.

The general permits of the permissionnaires, including the depositing of bond, must be obtained from Mexico City (Appendix II, Art. 21). From this point on, the local Mexican offices in San Diego and San Pedro are in charge. On the basis of the general permit to the permissionnaire the local offices issue the individual boat general permit, the use of foreign boat registration, the annual registry of vessels, the annual registry of nets, the fishermen's identification cards and the "Via la pesca" clearances.

The local offices are supposed to check: the net tonnages of the boats each year or whenever a modification occurs, the dimensions of the nets used for taking bait or fish, and, according to Article 30 of the 1933 Regulation (Appendix II), must inspect the cargo prior to unloading.

All fees and charges are collected by Mexican representatives of the Ministry of Treasury and Public Credit. These fees and charges are clearly defined in Appendix V and will not be repeated here. All of them are annual charges, the permits for which are valid for one year from the date of issuance, with the exception of the "Via la pesca" clearances. The fees for "Via la pesca" clearances are based on the net storage capacity of the boats and are charged for each trip, which cannot exceed 70 days. If the permits are taken out in the United States there is an additional charge of 25% for any and all of the above-mentioned charges and fees. Appendix XL gives an idea of the Mexican procedure in handling the various forms involved.

According to Article 12 of the 1938 Law (Appendix III), species taken under "Via la pesca" clearances are not subject to export tax. Although no specific statement is made excluding the exploitation tax, it has generally been conceded that this tax is covered by the "Via la pesca" fee.

The only violation requiring mandatory court action is that of foreign boats carrying out fishing activities in Mexican waters. Article 14 of the Law of December 26, 1938, (Appendix III) provides:

"Vessels which, without fulfilling the requirements established in this Law are discovered in territorial waters operating with fishery products, the transportation thereof or any other activity derived from those above, shall be obliged to appear before the proper authorities in the nearest port in order that the case may be investigated and the responsibility thereof may be exacted." (Appendix III)

The wording of this article is broad and likewise the interpretation also has been broad.

Article 30 of the 1933 Regulation (Appendix II) states:

"Holders of concessions or permits may not unload products captured, in the case of those destined for export, except in the port indicated in their authorization, nor without the cargo having been inspected by employees of the fishing office"

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

This provision coupled with the office hours of the inspectors has been the cause of many complaints from American fishermen, as it is sometimes difficult to locate the inspector.

The administration of the 70 day limit on "Via la pesca" clearances is another frequent cause for complaint (Appendix III, Arts. 9 and 10). Article 10 of the 1938 Law provides that these clearances must be returned at the end of the voyage and:

"Failure to comply with the provisions establishes the legal presumption which will admit no proof to the contrary, that other trips were effected under the permit granted "Via la pesca", each trip to be calculated at a rate of two days or fraction thereof following the one on which the corresponding statement should have been presented, and the sum shall immediately be deducted from the amount of the guarantee which was posted to cover the permit, without this preventing the exacting of the corresponding responsibilities when this is applicable

On occasions, bait boats will enter Mexican waters only for bait, thence proceeding to fishing grounds south of Mexico for tuna. In accordance with the above-cited regulation they are required to unload in the United States within 70 days. This prevents them from fishing out of Puntarenas, Costa Rica, or around the Galapagos Islands, for more than a brief period. There are both a freezing plant and a tuna cannery in Puntarenas. The purpose of Article 10 is, of course, to prevent the boats from making more than one trip with each "Via la pesca" clearance.

Because of Article 2, Section III-b of the 1938 Law (Appendix III), purse-seine boats have, on occasions, been prevented from operating in Mexican waters. This paragraph states:

" purse seines, lampara or ring nets may be used only in the places authorized therefor by the Executive

At present these types of gear are provisionally authorized to be operated in Mexican waters of the Pacific Ocean and the Gulf of California (Appendix IX). At any time, upon the issuance of an Executive Order, persons using these gear may be refused permits or the areas in which they may operate can be definitely restricted.

Transitory Article 5 of the 1938 Law (Appendix III) gives the Federal Executive the power to increase or decrease, as he sees fit, the tariffs and penalties applicable to foreign boats.

The Law of General Ways of Communication provides in Article 194 (Appendix VII) that foreign boats operating in Mexican waters must "meet equal or better conditions than the Mexican boats." This is rather broad and could most probably be interpreted in several ways.

Shrimp

In addition to the above-cited regulations which apply specifically to foreign tuna boats operating along the Mexican West Coast, there are several provisions of the general regulations which apply specifically to shrimp fishing.

In the first place,

"Fishery products other than shrimp, which are captured by the use of trawls shall be wholly utilized or disposed of in the domestic market or national industry." (Appendix II, Art. 84 bis).

This same provision also occurs in Article 4 of the Resolution of April 15, 1939 (Appendix X). Similarly Section II of Article 59 of the 1933 Regulation (Appendix II) provides that it is unlawful

"to throw into marine or fluvial waters fishery products and their waste matter"

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

These regulations were created in 1939 but, in general, have not been enforced. Since the shrimp trawls catch at least as many worthless trash fish as they do shrimp, the enforcement of the above provisions certainly would interfere considerably with their operations if not entirely stop them.

Another 1939 rule, not now enforced, provides that

"This Department (Fisheries) shall supervise the operations of the vessels equipped with trawls or drag nets, for which purpose it will place an inspector aboard each. The companies owning the vessels shall furnish free of charge lodging and meals on board such vessels " (Appendix X, Art. 5)

Somewhat along the same order, but probably only of general interest, is another of the 1939 promulgations which permits the use of floating packing plants and freezing ships only as auxiliaries to previously established similar shore plants, unless these ships are of Mexican registry (Appendix II, Art. 62).

Under present regulations only those foreign boats operating along the West Coast of Mexico under the regulations provided by the Law of December 26, 1938 (Appendix III) can fish in Mexican waters. There is no such law covering Mexican waters of the Gulf of Mexico and any foreign boats desiring to fish in these waters must come under Mexican registry and must abide by all the regulations required of Mexican boats.

Note: On July 2, 1947, Mexico published a decree in the "Diario Oficial" (Appendix LXXIII) which lists and describes the fees applicable to foreign boats fishing in Mexican territorial waters of the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea. With the exception of the waters involved, it is identical in wording to that pertaining to foreign boats operating along the West Coast. (Appendix V). It is too early to know the intentions, application or effects of this new decree.

American boats can be leased to Mexican fishing organizations but, of course, these boats must operate under Mexican registry. According to a reputable local attorney, a contract can be so drawn that at the expiration of a fixed period the boats so leased will be returned to the owners in good condition. It must be remembered in such instances that all Mexican claims against the boat have priority over any others, and in particular, any claims issuing from the labor laws are of first importance.

CONTRACT - CONCESSIONS

There is considerable confusion of thought amongst many Americans as to the value and significance of a fishing contract-concession. Much of this arises from the erroneous belief that Mexico grants exclusive concessions to individuals over an entire fishery or over a considerable extent of water together with almost complete freedom of operation.

A fishing contract-concession, in reality, is a contract between an individual or a juridical entity and the Government in which the grantee is bound to accomplish certain ends and the grantor may or may not allow certain privileges. In substance a contract-concession is, in general, a permit to establish a processing plant and to conduct fishing operations. Certain tax exemptions are given and a reserved fishery zone may or may not be granted. Upon termination of the contract or upon expiration of the allotted time (a maximum of 15 years) all material improvements, up to a sum specified in the contract, become the property of the Government.

In as much as many of the provisions regulating permits and permissionnaires also apply to contract-concessions and as the former have been dealt with in some detail no further discussion will be given here. Reference, however is made to Appendix I, Article 18, 22, 23,

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

24, 27, 28 and 29 and to Appendix II, Articles 4, 7, 9, 11 through 20 and 26 through 35. Reference is also made to Appendix XII, wherein a translation of a typical contract-concession is given.

FEES, DUTIES, ETC.

Other than the specific fishery fees which are quite explicit as mentioned before and which appear in Appendices IV and V, it is extremely difficult to be assured of what other fees and taxes may be applicable unless one is a tax expert. As an example of this, reference is made to Appendix XIII, Art. 1, Section 6, wherein cooperatives are exempt from fishing and diving taxes. This has been interpreted by the Ministry of Treasury to mean only exploitation taxes. All other charges are considered to be fees and therefor not included within the exemption. The comments and references that follow are given for what they are worth and it is not considered that they may be complete.

According to the Decree of December 30, 1946 (Appendix XXXIV) it is judged that the following taxes may be applicable to the fisheries:

1. Import taxes
 - a. 3% additional
2. Export taxes
 - a. 10% additional
 - b. 2% additional
3. Aforo tax
4. Stamp taxes on

 - b. Insurance
 - c. Freight
 - d. Receipts
 - e. 10% additional on all stamp taxes
5. Exploitation taxes
6. Fees for the furnishing of maritime, land and air services
 - a. 10% additional

The import and export tariffs appear to be quite specific, as do the "aforo" taxes (Appendices XXXVII, XXXVI and XXXVIII, respectively). It should be noted that the units of weight referred to in each of the above are as defined in Appendix XXXVII.

The import duties are subject to a 3% additional charge over that shown in the import tariffs. Likewise the export duties are subject to additional taxes of 10% and 12%. The President is empowered to alter import and export taxes (Appendix XXXIV, Art. 7).

The aforo valuations listed in Appendix XXXVIII are subject to a tax of 12% of the evaluation shown. For example, fresh or frozen tuna has an aforo valuation of 40 centavos per net kilogram. The tax would be 12% of this valuation or 4.8 centavos per net kilogram. The aforo is actually an additional export tax. The aforo evaluation can be changed monthly by the Aforo Commission and is based on the increase in the value of the product from its evaluation as of February 1938.

Tax stamps are required on all bills of sale, insurance policies, freight bills and receipts in general. An additional charge of 10% of the amount of these taxes is also assessed.

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

The exploitation taxes are given in Appendix IV (Fractions 52-81). For Mexican boats and for foreign boats operating under "Via la pesca" clearances it is considered that the charges for these clearances are exploitation taxes (Appendix V).

The fees for the furnishing of maritime services are stated in Appendices IV and V and include such items as:

For Mexican boats (Appendix IV):

1. Permits
2. Contract-concession fees
3. Identification cards
4. Registry of vessels
5. Registry of gear
6. Use of foreign boats

For foreign boats (Appendix V):

1. General permit
2. Use of foreign boats
3. Registry of vessels
4. Registry of nets
5. Identification cards

In addition there is a charge for navigation permits as required by the communication laws (Appendix VII, Art. 193).

The fees for the furnishing of maritime services are also assessed an additional 10%.

All the fees and taxes contained in Appendix V, Article 1, relative to boats operating under "Via la pesca" clearances, are increased by 25% when the permits are taken out in the United States (Appendix V, Art. 6).

As an example of the revenue obtained from the major fishery taxes, there are given below in tabular form the amounts listed by the Mexican Fishery Department as having been received during 1941 in accordance with the various specific taxes and fees. Each item is in accordance with the particular tariff to which it refers. The tariff of February 1, 1933 is Appendix IV and the tariff of November 17, 1939 is Appendix V. For 1941, over 74% of the revenue Mexico obtained from her fisheries was derived from taxation of American boats operating off the West Coast of Mexico.

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

In addition to the exemptions given cooperatives which shall be discussed later, local packing plants are exempt from exploitation taxes (Appendix IV, Art. 3). New industries are also exempt from various taxes, but these will not be treated.

In the Reciprocal Trade Agreement (Appendix XXXIX) Mexico fixed the import duties on canned salmon and canned California sardines at 70 centavos per legal kilogram, which was the duty rate at that time. The United States, on the other hand, reduced the duty by 50% on Mexican totoaba, shark fins and canned tuna. The concession on tuna can be revoked upon six months notice any time after the termination of the national emergency. The United States also froze free fish sounds, fish livers, shark skins, fish scrap and meal for fertilizers, fresh or frozen spiny lobsters, fresh or frozen shrimp, and abalone.

Of the above-mentioned free items, shrimp is now the subject of much discussion amongst our shrimp fishermen, who are threatening an attempt to restrict the amount of Mexican shrimp that can enter the United States.

Mexico has both free zones and free ports which have certain advantages with respect to the fisheries. The free zones are all of Lower California and a portion of Sonora bordering on the Colorado River (Appendix XLI) and Chetumal and Cozumel in Quintana Roo (Appendix XLII). The free ports are Salina Cruz and Matias Romero, Oaxaca, Puerto Mexico, Veracruz, and Topolobampo, Sinaloa (Appendix XXXV).

According to the Law of Mexican Free Ports (Appendix XXV, Art. 25-V):

"Fishery products from the high seas, destined for export, are not subject to export duties."

Fishery products from territorial waters, which are introduced into free ports,

"are considered as domestic products and therefore the corresponding export duties must be guaranteed" (loc. cit. Art. 25-IV).

Fishery products which are industrially produced, manufactured or transformed in free ports and zones are not subject to export duties (Appendix XLIII, Art. 419).

Free ports and zones are given further protection by Article 420 of the Customs Law which provides that foreign merchandise similar to that produced in the free ports and zones, and entering them, must pay the import duties (Appendix XLIII). For fishery products, this is further strengthened by Circular No. 301-10-16 (Appendix XLIV) which specifically makes the above applicable to Lower California.

COOPERATIVES

Mexico has been cooperative-minded and for this reason, many special privileges are granted to cooperatives.

A fishing cooperative is restricted in membership to active fishermen. There must be at least ten fishermen to organize a cooperative. Each cooperative must join a federation if one exists in the area. The federations are regional and in accordance with the product, which means that the federations cover one specific area and only fishing cooperatives can belong to a fishing federation. The federation is supposed to represent the various affiliated cooperatives and should be for the purpose of selling and buying in common the products of and the purchases for the member cooperatives. The federation is comprised of representatives from each cooperative and there cannot be more than three representatives from any one cooperative.

The federations are banded into the National Cooperative Confederation. This latter is a national organization which is supposed to represent all the federations regardless of their nature. No federation can have more than two representatives in the Confederation.

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

The Confederation may also buy and sell in common the products of the federations.

According to the Mexican Fisheries Department, in the various federal entities there are the following numbers of legally recognized fishing cooperatives (as of May 7, 1947):

Lower California	21
Sonora	21
Sinaloa	19
Nayarit	4
Colima	1
Michoacan	2
Guerrero	2
Oaxaca	2
Chiapas	12
Chihuahua	1
Hidalgo	3
Mexico	1
Tlaxcala	1
Tamaulipas	7
Veracruz	19
Tabasco	3
Campeche	5
Yucatan	1

Total 125

The membership varies in number from 11 to 538 individuals. In all, there are 7,639 fishermen listed as members of legally recognized cooperatives. As shown in the tabulation below, the majority (64%) have a membership of 50 or less persons.

No. of members	No. of cooperatives	% of total
11-50	80	64.0
51-100	26	20.8
101-150	12	9.6
151-200	3	2.4
201	4	3.2
Totals	125	100.0

Where federations exist, the fishing cooperatives are required to be affiliated with the federation. Some cooperatives (It is understood that there are not many of these) have become separated from the federations by means of the "amparo" -- a legal procedure which in some respects is comparable to our injunction. There are eight federations and the zones pertaining to each are as follows:

1. Federacion Regional de Sociedades Cooperativas de la Industria Pesquera Baja California, with headquarters in Ensenada, B. C. -- Northern Lower California, Pacific Coast only.

2. Federacion Regional de Sociedades Cooperativas de la Industria Pesquera Baja California Territorio Sur, with headquarters in Santa Rosalia, B. C. -- All of southern Lower California.

3. Federacion Regional de Sociedades Cooperativas de la Industria Pesquera Golfo de California, with headquarters in Nogales, Sonora -- Northern Lower California, Gulf side, and the state of Sonora as far south as Yavaros.

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

4. Federacion Regional de Sociedades Cooperativas de la Industria Pesquera Sinaloa-Sonora, with headquarters in Topolobampo, Sinaloa -- From Yavaros, Sonora to Mazatlan, Sinaloa.

5. Federacion Regional de Sociedades Cooperativas de la Industria Pesquera Sur Sinaloa-Nayarit, with headquarters in Escuinapa, Sinaloa -- From Mazatlan south to the southern border of Nayarit.

6. Federacion Regional de Sociedades Cooperativas de la Industria Pesquera Chiapas, with headquarters in Tonalá, Chis. -- All the coast of Chiapas.

7. Federacion Regional de Sociedades Cooperativas de la Industria Pesquera Tamaulipas y Norte de Veracruz, with headquarters in Tampico, Tamps. -- All of Tamaulipas and northern Veracruz to Tuxpan.

8. Federacion Regional de Sociedades Cooperativas de la Industria Pesquera Sur de Veracruz, with headquarters in Veracruz, Ver. -- The state of Veracruz from Tuxpan to the southern border.

There are no federations for the coastal states of Colima, Michoacan, Jalisco, Guerrero and Oaxaca on the Pacific and neither are there for Tabasco, Campeche, Yucatan and Quintana Roo on the Atlantic.

For a cooperative to be legally recognized it must first be approved by the Fishery Department and later by the Ministry of Economy. All sales contracts which the cooperatives enter into, if a fair percentage of their catch is involved, must be approved by the Ministry of Economy.

Of the many privileges granted fishing cooperatives it may be that contained in Article 14 of the 1932 Law (Appendix I) is most important. This article states:

"Rights acquired by fishermen's organizations shall be respected in every case"

Depending upon the interpretation, this can be extremely broad in its application.

In accordance with a 1938 decree (Appendix XIII) cooperatives are exempt from various taxes for a period of five years. This has been interpreted by the Ministry of Treasury to mean taxes only and not fees. Therefore, of the various fees and taxes given in Appendix IV, only the exploitation tax is considered as one from which the cooperatives are exempt. According to information received from an official of the Mexican Fishery Department cooperatives are also exempt from the exportation tax, the 2% municipal tax and the 10% additional tax. The exportation taxes are as given in Appendix XXXVI. The 2% municipal tax is a charge amounting to 2% of the exportation tax, which is granted to the municipalities in which the fishery products originate. The 10% additional tax is applied to the exportation tax in a manner similar to that of the 2% municipal tax but the Federal Government is the recipient of the 10%. According to information, cooperatives are not exempt from the aforo tax. (Appendix XXXVIII)

It is a general practice amongst the cooperatives to disband and reorganize at the end of the five-year tax exempt period in order that they may continue enjoying this privilege. A few of the more stable cooperatives have not followed this custom and they now are subject to taxation.

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

Cooperatives are also granted common exploitation zones

"..... in which it is absolutely prohibited to issue permits to private individuals for the exploitation of the species referred to" (Appendix II, Art. 5).

The following species have been reserved exclusively for capture by cooperative fishermen throughout Mexico:

- Lobsters and crawfish (Appendix XIV)
- Oysters (Appendix XV)
- Octopi (Appendix XVI)
- Squid (Appendix XVI)
- Shrimp (Appendices XVII and XVIII)
- Clams (Appendix XIX)

In addition, sharks have been partially reserved for cooperatives (Appendix VIII); totoaba, curbina and cabrilla are reserved for cooperatives in the Gulf of California north of latitude 27° (Appendix XX) and the various species of abalones along the west coast of Lower California are reserved for the cooperatives (Appendix XXI).

Because of more or less flagrant and open violation or circumvention of the principles contained in the cooperative laws, various attempts have been made to strengthen them. Examples of these attempts are the order prohibiting the granting of fishing permits to cooperatives that are not legally authorized (Appendix XXIII) and the decree establishing a severance tax of one peso a kilogram (approximately 10¢ U.S. per pound) on all fishery products from the West Coast of Mexico that were reserved for the cooperatives (Appendix XXIV). Legally recognized cooperatives were granted a rebate or an exemption from this tax.

In many of the fishing permits granted cooperatives there appears a clause which permits them to use foreign boats if they do not have sufficient or suitable boats of their own. It was on the basis of this clause that several American shrimp boats were permitted, for a brief time, to fish shrimp in Mexican waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

TERRITORIAL WATERS

We have been at divergence with Mexico over the problem of territorial waters since 1906 when we objected to the Mexican law of 1902 (Appendix XXV) which claimed fiscal jurisdiction over fisheries to a distance of 20 kilometers from the coast. This same law (loc. cit.) claimed as territorial waters only those waters extending to a distance of three miles from the coast.

In 1935 Mexico changed her stand and claimed nine nautical miles as territorial waters. The August 29, 1935 decree made no mention of fiscal claims beyond nine miles. This latter decree is not included in the appendices as a similar claim has been reiterated in a more recent law (Appendix XXVI, Art. 17-II-1).

Following President Truman's Proclamation of September 28, 1945, concerning marine subsoil resources and fisheries, President Avila Camacho of Mexico made a somewhat similar proclamation on October 29, 1945 (Appendix XXVII). This was later (January 1946) followed by the Mexican Chamber of Deputies and Senate passing amendments to the Constitution wherein subsoil resources on the continental shelf and fishery resources in the waters over the shelf were claimed for Mexico (Appendix XXVIII). The amendments have not yet been proclaimed.

FISHERY LAW

Chapter I

Fishing in General

Article 1. Acts of fishing and therefore subject to this law shall be those which, effected in national waters and having as their object the obtaining of specimens or biological elements peculiar to the water, remove them definitely from their natural habitat, whatever may be the objects pursued and the methods employed in effecting them.

Article 2. As regards the object pursued in the fishing, this may be for domestic consumption, for exploitation and for sport.

Article 3. Fishing for domestic consumption is that which is effected for the purpose of securing food for those engaged therein, the catch to be for the direct consumption of the latter or of their families.

Article 4. Fishing is for exploitation when it has as its object the obtaining of economic benefits from the transfer of the specimens caught in any state or condition. It is commercial when those specimens are the object of mercantile transactions in their natural state, without previously being subjected to processes other than those for their preservation. It is industrial when the specimens caught undergo, before their sale, a process of partial or total transformation.

Article 5. Fishing for sport is that which is effected for no other purpose than the pleasure of fishing, for diversion, or for the exercise which it involves.

Article 6. Since fishing affects a natural resource which forms part of the public wealth, its practice and the exploitation of the resource in question are regulated by the State to the end of insuring their rational utilization, the preservation of the species and a greater economic benefit therefrom.

Article 7. In accordance with the provisions of the preceding article, the Federal Government, through the Ministry of Agriculture and Development, may at any time restrict, limit and regulate (the practice of) fishing, as regards the intensity of the activities devoted to it, the number of persons engaged in it, the times when it may be effected and the species which may be caught.

Article 8. To perform any act of fishing, with the exception of that for domestic consumption, a permit granted under the terms of this law and its regulations must be previously obtained.

Article 9. Fishermen directly engaged in fishing may organize themselves into groups for the purpose of improving their social and economic conditions, such groups, regardless of the form which they adopt, to enjoy the protection of the State under the related dispositions.

Article 10. The fixing of duties, tariff schedules, rates and other fiscal charges, as well as the formulation of rules for their collection, shall be under the direction of the Ministry of Finance and Public Credit, which however shall in every case take into consideration the technical opinion of the Ministry of Agriculture and Development in the matter, without encroaching, through the enjoyment of that privilege, upon the powers of the latter Ministry under the law.

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

Article 11. The acts to which this law refers shall be subject to no taxation other than that imposed by the Federal Government, since the acts in question have as their object the exploitation of a natural resource of Federal ownership.

Chapter II

Fishing Activities

Article 12. The right to fish should be exercised without obstructing in any way the economic activities of the place where the fishing is done, such as navigation, transportation and the utilization of waters under concession rights.

Article 13. Permits or concessions covering fishing for exploitation purposes shall in no case deprive the inhabitants of the region of the right to fish as much as may be necessary for their own needs and consumption. Fishing for sport shall under no circumstances be permitted when, in addition to obstructing fishing for domestic consumption, it renders difficult or impossible fishing for exploitation purposes.

Article 14. Rights acquired by fishermen's organizations shall be respected in every case provided the profits obtained from the economic activities in which they are engaged are distributed among the members of the group.

Article 15. In view of the public utility which the natural fishing resources represent, the Executive of the Union, through the Ministry of Agriculture and Development, is hereby authorized, in accordance with the technical studies which may be undertaken, and upon the issuance of an order in each case:

I. To fix the periods when fishing shall be permitted and when it shall be prohibited, indicating the reasons upon which the action is based in each case, as well as the species and the places to which the action taken refers.

II. To determine the maximum and minimum measurements of the species within which they may be caught, taking into account the general conditions which the regulations of this law may establish in this respect.

III. To determine the methods, instruments and means of fishing which shall be prohibited because they result in an unnecessary destruction of the fishing resources.

IV. To point out the reserve zones for special breeding purposes or for exploitation enterprises which require Government protection; to determine the places of refuge which it may consider necessary and the zones for common exploitation, and lastly, those which should be devoted to the exclusive use of the inhabitants of the shores.

Article 16. The seasons when fishing shall be forbidden may be absolute or partial, applying to all fish or only one or several species, and may be general or local, affecting all the waters of the coast or determined region, or only a portion thereof.

Chapter III

Fishing Permits

Article 17. The permits necessary for the exploitation of the national fishing resources shall be granted in each case by the Ministry of Agriculture and Development by means of contract-concessions or administrative permits.

Article 18. The permit shall be granted by means of a contract-concession when the fishing is of an industrial nature, provided regular works are undertaken and permanent works established, or when the products of the fishing are cultivated by the concessionaire.

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

Article 19. Administrative permits shall be granted for commercial fishing when the products are utilized in their natural state, as well as for sport fishing. The permits shall be general, local and special.

Article 20. The general permit shall be issued to authorize fishing in all the waters of national ownership in the Republic. The local permit shall be to authorize it in a given section of these waters.

Article 21. Special permits shall be issued to authorize the fishing of species the preservation of which is especially important; permits issued for sport fishing shall also be of a special character.

Article 22. A contract-concession may not be granted to cover a period greater than fifteen years; nor may permits of more than a year's duration be granted, all such contracts and permits to be null and void after the expiration of the periods stated.

Article 23. An essential requirement for the granting of any of the authorizations referred to in this chapter, with the exception of those related to sport fishing, shall be the posting by the concessionnaires or those requesting permits, of a guarantee satisfactory to the Ministry of Agriculture and Development, that all the obligations stipulated will be faithfully complied with. Without the posting and acceptance of this guarantee, the permit granted shall have no legal value.

Article 24. The violation of the terms of contract-concessions and permits shall be punishable by the cancellation of the contract-concession or permit, as the case may be, or a fine not to exceed one thousand pesos, or both.

Article 25. Under the terms of the regulations of this law, permits may be used only by the persons or companies to whom they have been issued and shall be non-transferable. In accordance with the provisions of the same regulation, it shall be the duty of all those engaged in fishing for exploitation purposes to carry with them credentials to identify them with the permission granted.

Chapter IV

Fishing Control

Article 26. The Ministry of Agriculture and Development shall be responsible for the inspection and patrol of fishing activities under the terms of the present law and the dispositions which may be issued thereunder.

Article 27. It shall be the duty of persons holding concessions or permits to see that the employees engaged by them in connection with their activities comply with the provisions of the applicable laws and with the terms of the permits; such persons shall, therefore, be held responsible for any violations committed in connection with the fishing activities undertaken in line with their contract-concessions or permits and shall incur the penalties due, without this affecting the penalty imposed upon the person directly committing the violation.

Article 28. Holders of concessions and permits shall be obliged to prove their compliance with each and every obligation contracted under the authorization granted them and to render detailed and verified reports on the work done by them under the terms of the regulations.

Article 29. The penalties applicable to violations of this law, its regulations and related dispositions, as well as the authorizations granted under the law, shall be determined by the Ministry of Agriculture and Development, in accordance with the following principles:

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

I. Penalties may consist of the cancellation or revocation of the contract-concession or permit, as the case may be, as well as of prohibiting any act of fishing.

II. They may also consist of fines which shall not exceed one thousand pesos in each case for a person or company under the terms of the regulations, and may be added to the penalties mentioned in the preceeding paragraph. Administrative arrests may be applied in the same manner in cases of insolvency on the part of the violator.

TRANSITORY ARTICLES

Article 1. This law shall become effective as of January 1, 1933.

Article 2. The imports effected under the exemptions established in the concessions granted under the Fishing Law which this Law supersedes, shall be considered of a permanent character.

In compliance with the provisions of fraction I of Article 89 of the Political Constitution of the United Mexican States, and for its publication and observance, I promulgate this law in the residence of the Federal Executive Power in the City of Mexico on the twenty-sixth day of August, one thousand nine hundred thirty-two.

APPENDIX II

Signed January 27, 1933. Published February 1, 1933

REGULATION OF THE FISHING LAW

TITLE I

General

SOLE CHAPTER

Article 1. For the purposes of article one of the Fishing Law, biological products shall be all those having such origin, even though they may subsequently have undergone a natural transformation in their native habitat.

Article 2. For the purposes of the Fishing Law, this Regulation and other dispositions in the matter, by reserved zone of refuge is meant that destined to the creation and procreation of the fishery species peculiar thereto, in which it is prohibited at all times to fish, pursue, or disturb in any manner the species mentioned. These zones shall be established by order of the Ministry of Agriculture and Development, in accordance with article 50 of this Regulation.

Article 3. A reserved zone for cultivation is one granted to an individual, a company or a juridical entity for the purpose of obtaining for his or their exclusive benefit the acclimatization, conservation, development, improvement and exploitation of the species which may exist or be hatched within it. These zones shall be granted by means of the respective contract-concessions, in accordance with the provisions of Article 18 of the Fishing Law.

Article 4. A reserved zone for fishing is one granted to an individual, a company or a juridical entity for the purpose of exploiting for his or their exclusive benefit the fishing resources already existing therein. This right shall be granted in the following order of preference:

I. To regional groups of fishermen organized in accordance with the law, in cases where in the judgment of the Ministry of Agriculture and Development it may be necessary as a means of insuring them a livelihood, to grant rights covering this type of zone, regardless of the species or resources that they may exploit.

II. To concessionnaires engaged in the industrial exploitation of the fishing wealth of the country by means of the establishment of packing plants upon national territory.

Article 5. A common exploitation zone is one established to insure a means of livelihood for the regional fishermen organized according to law, in which it is absolutely prohibited to issue permits to private individuals, for the exploitation of the species referred to in the Decree establishing it.

Article 6. Zones of common exploitation shall be established under the following conditions:

I. When the regional fishermen are duly organized according to law.

II. When, after due study on the part of the Ministry of Agriculture and Development, the insufficiency of the reserved fishing zones to insure a means of subsistence for the regional fishermen is proved, as well as when it may be necessary to prohibit fishing in said zones to a private individual to attain this end.

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

Article 7. Reserved fishing or hatching zones shall not be more than twenty kilometers long by four kilometers wide for migratory species. In the case of sedentary species, the fishing or hatching zones shall not be more than three kilometers long and two kilometers wide. Lastly, the reserved fishing zones authorized for regional groups of fishermen may be larger, in the discretion of the Ministry of Agriculture and Development, in relation to the number of fishermen in the group to which granted.

(x) The Department of Forestry and Game may issue concessions covering a larger area than those heretofore stipulated, to private parties, for zones reserved for exploitation or cultivation, only in the case of exploitation of aquatic plant species of maritime waters.

(x) As amended by Decree of July 16, 1937, published in Diario Oficial July 17, 1937.

Article 8. The zones reserved for hatching or fishing purposes mentioned in the preceding articles shall always refer to one or more species of fish, specifically mentioned.

The zones of common exploitation may refer to all the species of fish found therein.

Article 9. In the case of sedentary species, the granting of reserved fishing zones implies the granting of the corresponding hatching zone, and the concessionnaires are obligated to cultivate the species in question in the zones assigned to them.

Article 10. For the purposes of granting fishing permits, the national fishing wealth shall be divided into two classes: general and special; the former includes all the species not covered in Title IV of this Regulation as special.

TITLE II

Fishing Authorizations

CHAPTER I

Contract-Concessions

Article 11. Contract-concessions, whether for general or special fishing shall be granted direct by the Ministry of Agriculture and Development.

Article 12. Contract-concessions for fishing shall include:

I. The rights granted by the concession, in accordance with the law, this Regulation and other dispositions existing in the matter.

II. The obligations which must be complied with by the concessionnaire under the Law, this Regulation and other dispositions existing in the matter, taking into consideration the nature of his operations and the species with which they have to do.

III. The duration of the contract-concession.

IV. The reasons for which the contract-concession may be declared null and void.

V. The periods within which the concessionnaire must commence and finish the packing plants that he obligates himself to construct, or the limits of the reserved zones for fishing or hatching, the systems used, and the general plan of work.

VI. The guarantee that the concessionnaire must post to insure the fulfillment of his obligations..

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

VII. All the requirements and obligations that the Ministry of Agriculture and Development may deem necessary to insure the conservation and development of the fishery wealth of the country.

Article 13. MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

APPENDIX III

LAW COVERING FISHING IN MEXICAN TERRITORIAL WATERS
OF THE PACIFIC OCEAN AND THE GULF OF CALIFORNIA

Signed December 26, 1938. Published December 30, 1938.

Article 1. Those persons who wish to undertake commercial fishing in Mexican territorial waters of the Pacific Ocean and the Gulf of California using vessels of foreign registry, and who intend to send their products to foreign markets, must fulfill the provisions contained in this law.

Within the conception of commercial fishing for vessels of foreign registry there is allowed the taking of species which can be packed and all those which do not require a special authorization.

Sport fishing in the waters indicated in the first paragraph is also subject to the provisions of this Law.

Commercial Fishing

Article 2. In order to engage in commercial fishing it shall first be necessary:

- I. To obtain a general fishing permit, it being understood as such those which refer to all the territorial waters of the Pacific Ocean, including those of the Gulf of California.
- II. To obtain for each trip and for each vessel, a "Via la Pesca" warrant.
- III. To fulfill the following requirements:
 - a) To take only that amount of bait which is to be used on the fishing trip when this method is the one used by the vessel.
 - b) Not to use nets the mesh of which is smaller than the fish for which it was constructed; the dimensions of each shall be specified in the regulations of this Law. If, in addition, it is wished to use nets of the type known as "purse-seiners" or of lampara or ring types, these may be used only in the places authorized therefor by the Executive by provisions of a general nature which shall be published in the DIARIO OFICIAL of the Federation.
- IV. To satisfy the other requirements of this Law, the General Law of Fishing, its Regulations, and the other provisions in effect and which may be issued in the future.

Article 3. Acts of fishing and those related thereto and included under this Law shall be subject to the Tariffs which may be issued by the Federal Executive.

When special rates are lacking in such Tariffs, the rates specified by the General Tariff of fishing shall be applied.

Article 4. General fishing permits, the registry of vessels and nets, "Via la Pesca" warrants, identification cards and other relative documents should be obtained from the offices which the Department of Forestry and Hunting and Fishing has established in Ensenada, Lower California, and the subaltern offices thereof in San Diego and San Pedro, California, U.S.A., for all vessels coming from any point north of the international boundary line with the United States of America, and in Salina Cruz, Oaxaca, for all vessels coming from any point south of the international boundary line with Guatemala.

Article 5. To obtain a general fishing permit, the interested parties shall fulfill the following requirements:

- I. They shall pay the fees specified in the General Fishing Tariff, provided they have not been modified by the Federal Executive in conformity with Article 3 of this Law.
- II. They shall prove that they own or have the right to use the vessel or vessels which it is proposed to devote to fishing in national waters of the Pacific.
- III. If groups of fishermen are owners of fishing vessels, they shall also give proof that they are organized in accordance with the laws of the country in which they reside, to engage in commercial fishing.
- IV. They shall present a detailed report which is to contain the following data:
 - a) Full name (s) of the person, persons or groups directly interested, and their addresses.
 - b) Name and nationality of each of the vessels to be used.
 - c) Places and dates of registry.
 - d) Tonnage of each.
 - e) Names and nationalities of the respective masters or captains.
 - f) Amount of marine insurance carried, if any, and the name of the insuring company.

The authorized representatives of vessels or of captains or masters must register in the respective Delegation before obtaining the "Via la Pesca" warrant of the vessel in question.

- V. They shall guarantee the fulfillment of their fiscal obligations to the satisfaction of the General Treasury of the Federation and the Department of Forestry and of Hunting and Fishing or the dependencies of both these Departments, by means of a cash guarantee which must be deposited in national territory, in accordance with Article 43 of the Regulation of the General Fishing Law in effect.

Article 6. The Delegations of the Department of Forestry and of Hunting and Fishing shall not authorize the "Via la Pesca" warrant for any vessel which, having operated under a general fishing permit, attempts to apply for a different general permit without first having cancelled the former permit and again registered the vessel as specified in the foregoing Article.

Article 7. The masters or captains of fishing vessels, those directly interested, or the legal representatives thereof in the case of companies or groups, may make protest to the offices or agents of the Ministry of Finance and Public Credit when they encounter undue obstacles in the securing of general permits for fishing of the "Via la Pesca" warrants to which this Law refers, or to effect the corresponding fiscal payments. Such offices or agents must take care to prevent action by mediators and whenever they find a complaint justified, shall attempt to remedy the causes thereof and shall notify the Ministry of Finance and Public Credit by the most rapid means available.

Article 8. The "Via la Pesca" warrant must be applied for by the captain or master of each vessel and may be issued only when the interested parties give proof:

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

- I. That the fees mentioned in Article 3 have been paid to the proper fiscal offices.
- II. That the tonnage agrees with that declared.

Article 9. The "Via la Pesca" warrant shall be good for one trip only, which trip must not exceed seventy days and, with the exception of the waters surrounding the Coronado Islands, Lower California, shall confer the right to capture, in the waters indicated in Article 1, all the migratory species not subject to closed seasons and not requiring a special permit or authorization. Only vessels of three net tons capacity or less may fish in the national waters immediately surrounding the Coronado Islands, Lower California, in accordance with this Law and provided that no nets of any kind are used.

Article 10. All "Via la Pesca" warrants shall be returned at the end of the voyage to the authorized personnel of the Department of Forestry and of Hunting and Fishing in the port of unloading, with a detailed statement as to the species obtained and the amount of each species, as well as the places where they were captured, the statement to be made on special forms the wording of which shall be supplied by the aforesaid Department.

Failure to comply with the provisions of the foregoing paragraph establishes the legal presumption which will admit no proof to the contrary, that other trips were effected under the permit granted "Via la Pesca", each trip to be calculated at a rate of two days or fraction thereof following the one on which the corresponding statement should have been presented, and the sum resulting as due from the violator when such calculation has been made, shall immediately be deducted from the amount of the guarantee which was posted to cover the permit, without this preventing the exacting of the corresponding responsibilities when this is applicable.

The personnel of the Department shall in any case make the corresponding inspection and shall return to the fishing authority which issued it, the "Via la Pesca" warrants collected and cancelled, together with the capture and unloading declarations.

Article 11. For fiscal purposes, the personnel authorized by the Ministry of Finance and Public Credit shall be entrusted both in national territory and in foreign ports of unloading with the collection of the tax and the supervision of the fishing activities. In the case that in the belief of such personnel, no document of violation has been prepared by any of the employees attached to the respective office of the Department, the personnel in question must do this in detail, forwarding such notice to the Delegation of the Department which has jurisdiction in the place where the violation was discovered.

Article 12. The species taken under the "Via la Pesca" warrant shall not be subject to payment of export taxes, but there will be subject to the corresponding penalties according to the laws, the act of taking unauthorized species, or carrying any kind of fish in the bait tanks or outside the warehouses, refrigerators and other places which are listed in the registration papers as storage places for dead fish and not fish taken provisionally as is fish for bait. In case of violation of this provision by the holder of the permit, a sum corresponding to twice the amount specified for the quantity transported legally shall be paid to cover the quantity transported illegally; in addition, there shall be imposed the fine or fines specified in the General Law of Fishing in effect until such time as the Federal Executive formulates the regulations to which Article 3 of this Law refers.

For the purposes of this Article, it shall also be considered illegal to transport any species filleted or semi-prepared in a manner which would diminish the volume taxable in accordance with the respective tariff. The Federal Executive shall decide in the regulation which he issues to make this Law effective, what species of fish or shellfish may be transported without heads or which are cleaned inside, and the additional rates payable in such case.

Article 13. It is optional for the masters or captains of fishing vessels who have fulfilled the requirements of this Law, to stop or not at the Mexican ports on the route of their authorized voyage; but in case they do, they are obliged to satisfy whatever requirements the laws may impose on vessels which enter national ports under stress.

Article 14. Vessels which, without fulfilling the requirements established in this Law or which have "Via la Pesca" warrants which have already been used or on which the time limit has expired, are discovered in territorial waters performing fishing operations, taking bait, operating with fishery products, the transportation thereof or any other activity derived from those above, shall be obliged to appear before the proper authorities in the nearest port in order that the case may be investigated and the responsibility thereof may be exacted.

Article 15. Applicable for the purposes of this Law are the penalties and procedures established by the General Law of Fishing in effect, as well as its Regulation, the Customs Law, the Law of General Means of Communication, Resolutions, Circulars and any other provisions in effect and those which may be issued in the future.

Sports Fishing

Article 16. Permits for sport fishing for non-resident foreigners in the cases to which Article 1 of this Law refers, shall be granted by any office under the jurisdiction of the Department of Forestry and of Hunting and Fishing, and shall be subject to the Tariffs in effect until the Federal Executive fixes the tariffs which are to regulate it, under the terms of Article 3.

Article 17. Permits for sport fishing in the waters indicated in Article 1 and provided that this is effected on board vessels which sail from the port of San Diego, California, U.S.A., shall be valid only for the day for which they were expressly issued, by means of the payment of the fees applicable, and may be issued by the authorized employees of the Department of forestry and of Hunting and Fishing in that Port, who may advance them for the days for which they are requested according to the duration of the trip, the captains of such vessels being obliged, on their return, to turn in the permits that have expired for their definitive cancellation.

Article 18. Persons or organizations who are masters of vessels, national or foreign, engaged in effecting acts of sport fishing in national waters must fulfill the following requirements:

- I. They must obtain a special permit paying in advance an annual fee which shall be specified in the tariff mentioned in Article 3;
- II. They must guarantee the fulfillment of their fiscal obligations in the manner provided by Section V of Article 5;
- III. They must register their vessels in the Delegation of the Department of Forestry and of Hunting and Fishing established at Ensenada, Lower California;
- IV. They must obtain identification cards for the crew of each vessel;
- V. They must refrain from issuing passage tickets to those persons who have not first acquired the necessary permits for sport fishing;
- VI. They must comply with the other provisions of the General Law of Fishing in effect, its Regulations, and other dispositions in effect.

Article 19. The owners of private yachts of foreign registry making trips to Mexican waters and effecting sport fishing shall, in turn, have the following obligations;

- I. To obtain on each occasion, a one-month special permit for sport fishing, paying a fee of 25.00 pesos for it.

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

- II. To register the vessel in the corresponding Delegation of the Department of Forestry and of Hunting and Fishing.
- III. To obtain identification cards for the crew.
- IV. To obtain, in addition, the proper individual permits for sport fishing for each of the sportsmen in accordance with the fees in effect until the Federal Executive determines those to apply, in accordance with Article 3 of this Law.
- V. Whatever other requirements may be imposed by regulations in effect.

Article 20. In no case shall the use of nets be permitted in sport fishing, regardless of size and description.

TRANSITORY ARTICLES

Article 1. The following Decrees are abrogated: That of March 2, 1936, relative to the fishing of species capable of being packed; that of July 8, 1936 regarding small scale fishing; that of March 31, 1937 regarding sport fishing; and all the provisions that may be at variance with this Law.

Article 2. Persons who, when this Law becomes operative, may have been operating under fishing permits granted previously, shall enjoy a period of thirty days in which to submit to the provisions of this Law.

Article 3. This Law shall become effective ten days after the date of its publication in the DIARIO OFICIAL of the Federation.

Article 4. Until the Executive issues the Tariffs which shall apply definitively, those contained in the decrees of March 2, 1936, and March 31, 1937, shall continue in effect.

APPENDIX VI

EXCERPTS FROM

MEXICAN CONSTITUTION

Article 27. The ownership of the lands and waters comprised within the boundaries of the national territory is vested originally in the Nation, which has had, and has, the right to transmit title thereof to private persons, thereby constituting private property.

Private property shall not be expropriated except for reasons of public utility and subject to payment of indemnity.

The Nation shall at all times have the right to impose on private property such limitations as the public interest may demand, as well as the right to regulate the utilization of natural resources which are subject to appropriation, in order to conserve them and to insure a more equitable distribution of the public wealth. With this end in view, the necessary measures shall be taken to divide up large landed estates; to develop small landed holdings in operation; to create new agricultural communities with the indispensable land and waters; to encourage agriculture in general and to prevent the destruction of natural resources, and to protect property from damage to the detriment of society. Centers of population which at present either have no lands or water or which do not possess them in sufficient quantities for the needs of their inhabitants, shall be entitled to grants thereof, which shall be taken from adjacent properties, the rights of small landed holdings in operation being respected at all times.

In the Nation is vested the direct ownership of all minerals or substances which, in veins, ledges, masses or ore-pockets, form deposits of a nature distinct from that of the earth itself, such as the minerals from which industrial metals and metaloids are extracted; deposits of precious stones, rocksalt and the deposits of salt formed by sea water; products derived from the decomposition of rocks, when subterranean works are required for their extraction; mineral or organic deposits of materials susceptible to utilization as fertilizers; solid mineral fuel; petroleum, and all solid, liquid or gaseous hydrocarbons.

In the Nation is likewise vested the ownership of the waters of the territorial seas, to the extent and within the limits fixed by International Law; of the waters of lagoons and estuaries which connect intermittently or permanently with the sea; of the waters of inland lakes of natural formation which are directly connected with streams having a constant flow; of the waters of rivers and their direct or indirect tributaries, from the source of their first permanent, intermittent or torrential waters to their outlet into the sea, lakes, lagoons or estuaries of national ownership; of the waters of streams having a constant or intermittent flow and of their direct or indirect tributaries, whenever the bed of the former, throughout their entire extent or part of same, forms National or two State boundary lines or passes from one State to another or crosses the National boundary line; of the waters of lakes, lagoons or estuaries whose beds, zones or banks are crossed by the boundary lines of two or more States or by the National boundary line or when the limit of the banks serves as the National boundary line or as the boundary between two States; of the waters of springs which rise on beaches, maritime zones, beds or banks of lakes, lagoons or estuaries of National ownership and of the waters extracted from mines. Water in the subsoil may be extracted freely by artificial works and be appropriated by the owner of the land, but whenever public interests so demand or other utilizations are affected, the Federal Executive is empowered to regulate its extraction and utilization and even to establish closed areas, the same as for the other waters of national ownership. Any other waters not comprised in the foregoing enumeration shall be deemed as an integral part of the property through which they flow or the deposits are found, but if located on two or more properties, the utilization of such water shall be considered of public welfare and shall be subject to the rulings that may be passed by the States.

In the cases to which the two preceding paragraphs refer, the ownership of the Nation shall be inalienable and imprescriptible; and concessions shall only be granted by the

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

Federal Government to private individuals or civil or commercial corporations organized in accordance with Mexican Laws, on condition that regular works are established for the utilization of said resources and that all requisites set forth in the laws are complied with. No concessions will be granted in the case of petroleum, or solid, liquid or gaseous hydrocarbons, and the respective Regulating Law will specify the form in which the Nation will carry out the exploitation of such products.

Legal capacity to acquire ownership of lands and waters of the nation shall be governed by the following provisions:

I. Only Mexicans by birth or naturalization and Mexican corporations have the right to acquire ownership of lands, waters and their appurtenances, or to obtain concessions for working mines or for the utilization of waters or mineral fuel in the Republic of Mexico. The Nation may grant the same right to aliens, provided they agree before the Ministry of Foreign Relations to consider themselves as Mexicans in respect to such property, and bind themselves not to invoke the protection of their Governments in matters relating thereto; under penalty, in case of non-compliance, of forfeiture to the Nation of property so acquired. Under no circumstances may foreigners acquire direct ownership of lands and waters within a zone of 100 kilometers along the frontiers and of 50 kilometers inland from the seacoast.

IV. Commercial stock companies may not acquire, hold or manage rural properties. Companies of this nature which may be organized to work factories, or to engage in mining or in the petroleum industry or for any other purpose except agriculture may acquire, hold or manage lands, but only in the area strictly necessary for their buildings or services. This area shall be fixed in each particular case by the Executive of the Union or of the respective State.

Article 133. This Constitution, the laws of Congress arising thereunder, and all Treaties in accordance therewith already entered into or which in the future may be entered into by the President of the Republic, with the approval of the Senate, shall be the Supreme Law of the Land. And the Judges in every State shall be bound by this Constitution and by these laws and treaties, in spite of conflicting provisions in the Constitution or laws of any State.

Sharks should be fully utilized.

Mexico, D.F., November 12, 1941

You are advised that some shark exploiters utilize only the livers, throwing away the rest of the animal, and as this waste is unnecessary and produces an injury to the national economy, since the hides and fins can be exported and the salt-dried meat is acceptable in the local markets where it can be sold at low prices within reach of the poor, you are requested to notify the permissionnaires of their obligation to utilize that fishery product in its entirety, which they shall prove to the satisfaction of the enforcement employees of this Directorate; if necessary you are to apply Article 59, section II of the Fishery Regulation, to punish violators.

The regulation referred to says:

"Article 59. Without prejudice to the prohibitions of a special nature established in Title IV of this Regulation, it is absolutely prohibited:

"II. To throw in maritime or fluvial waters or to abandon on the shores or banks, fishery products and their waste matter, except under the circumstances covered by Article 91 of this Regulation."

RESOLUTION ON REGULATIONS FOR THE FISHING
OF VARIOUS SPECIES OF ABALONE,
IN WATERS OF THE WEST COAST OF LOWER CALIFORNIA.

Signed March 10, 1947. Published March 14, 1947.

O R D E R :

I. The capture of the different species of abalone produced in the waters of the western shore of Lower California is reserved to the coastal fishermen of the west coast and the offshore islands, organized into cooperatives in accordance with the law.

II. The exploitation of the different species of abalone produced in the above-mentioned waters, will be permitted, with the limitations and restrictions necessary to the conditions of production of this group of molluscs, only to the fishermen's cooperatives which in previous years have engaged in this fishery. If the potentiality of the abalone beds allows, their exploitation may also be permitted to other cooperatives, under the terms fixed in each case by the Ministry of Marine, in accordance with the varying conditions and circumstances which must be taken into consideration upon request for permits by cooperatives wishing to engage in this type of fishery for the first time.

III. The permits granted to various fishing cooperatives for the capture of the different species of abalone in waters of the west coast of Lower California and its islands, will be subject, with reference to the destination and use of the products obtained, to the following restrictions:

1. That the products be offered first to supplying the processing plants which pack and can abalone in the form of preserved food, authorized for such use by the Ministry of Marine and located in the following places in the western zone of Lower California: El Sauzal, Ensenada, Isla de Cedros, Bahia de Tortugas or Puerto de San Bartolome, Isla Margarita and Cabo San Lucas.

2. That the products be offered also, in the percentage of production annually fixed by the Ministry of Marine, to certain semi-processing, the fishery production cooperatives themselves filleting them fresh, to be sold only and exclusively for the purpose of supplying food to the inhabitants of the Republic.

IV. The Directorate General of Fisheries, with the technical personnel which has been placed at its disposal, will proceed immediately with such scientific studies and investigations as may be feasible, for the purpose of determining as soon as possible, the most important places which produce the different species of abalone; the potentiality of production and the capacity of exploitation in each place; correct delimitation of zones and their respective sections, in order to specify in each zone, which sections may be exploited and to what point of intensity the exploitation may be carried out; which sections should be exploited alternate years and which should be closed temporarily or indefinitely, and lastly, those which should be kept only as places reserved for the protection and natural propagating of these molluscs for the purpose of repopulating beds already depleted.

V. Until we know the results of the studies and investigations which are referred to in the previous paragraph or article, the capture of the different species of abalone shall not be carried on indiscriminately everywhere by the fishing cooperatives with permits for this type of exploitation, but rather, these cooperatives, in accordance with their legal residences as stated in their charters, shall limit the radius of their fishing activities with respect to the capture of abalone, to the beds existing within the zone corresponding to their legal residence; for which purpose the west coast of Lower California, including the exploitable beds on the shores of the mainland and those of the adjacent islands, are hereby divided into three zones with the following limits from north to south:

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

FIRST ZONE. From parallel 32°32' north latitude, to parallel 28°30' north latitude.

SECOND ZONE. From parallel 28°28' north latitude, to parallel 27°1' north latitude.

THIRD ZONE. From parallel 26°59' north latitude, to parallel 22°52' north latitude..

VI. The fishery concessionnaires authorized by the Ministry of Marine to utilize the production of abalone caught by the fisheries production cooperatives in their packing plants established ashore, may also make use of floating plants as auxiliaries to these, as long as the floating plants are of Mexican registry; they carry on board official inspection and patrol personnel to observe the manner and methods of the fishing activities; the cost of such service be paid by the authorized concessionnaire; the raw material comes from the production obtained by cooperatives having their legal residence within the zone in which the floating plant may be operating; and such raw material be obtained by fishing carried on outside of a radius of 120 nautical miles from the place in which land packing plants may be established.

VII. Since the limits of permissible exploitation in each of the zones cannot be determined precisely, upon the basis of information to be obtained from studies and investigations not yet made, the dispositions contained in this Order, which require previous knowledge of such facts, are of a provisional nature and may be modified as such studies and investigations are carried out. Therefore the limits of each zone, in connection with permissible exploitations, since the necessary data to be obtained from such studies and investigations is not yet available, shall be fixed by the Directorate General of Fisheries and Allied Industries of the Ministry of Marine, determining the averages that may be caught, by taking the statistics on exploitation of abalone in the last five years.

VIII. From the date on which the Ministry of Marine announces, with due notice, the exploitation of the different species of abalone authorized in the corresponding permits, this fishery may be carried out only under the supervision and observation of the inspector or inspectors who for such purpose are designated by the Directorate of Fisheries and Allied Industries as supervisors in the activities of the fishery, the salaries, food and lodging of the inspectors and other incidental expenses to be chargeable to the permissionnaires who carry out these exploitations, they being obliged to furnish the personnel in question with the facilities and conveniences necessary to the best possible discharge of their commission and to comply with the dispositions contained in this order, the Fishery Law and its Regulations, and any which, under its authority and power, are prescribed for the above-mentioned official personnel in their instructions and letters of commission.

IX. There is established a relative and partial, local and definite closed season for the capture of the different species of abalone in the waters of the west coast of Lower California which are not precisely destined to the ends to which article III of this Order refers.

X. For the conservation of the national public resource composed of the different species of abalone produced in our maritime waters, the dispositions of articles 90 and 94 of the Regulations of the Fishery Law, as well as those of this Order, must be strictly observed.

XI. A partial and temporary closed season is declared for the capture of the different species of abalone in waters of the western coast of Lower California, which includes from January 15 until March 15 of each year. Individuals and public entities shall be able to acquire for the use or utilization of these properties only the rights conferred in this law and in such special laws as may be issued by the Congress of the Union.

However, accidental or accessory profits, compatible with the nature of these properties, such as the sale of crops, materials or waste, or such as the authorization of uses alluded to in Article 29, shall be governed by common law.

APPENDIX XXVII

PRESIDENTIAL DECLARATION CLAIMING CONTINENTAL SHELF

Declaration made October 29, 1945, published in local newspapers on October 30, 1945.

The experience of recent years has evidenced the growing necessity of countries to preserve those natural resources which in the past, for various reasons, have been outside of their control and integral utilization.

As is known, the lands constituting the continental masses in general do not rise perpendicularly from the great ocean depths but rest on a submarine shelf known as the continental shelf, limited by the isobath, i.e., the line uniting points of equal depth (200 meters), from the edges of which the slope descends sharply or gradually to the ocean floor. This shelf, per se, constitutes an integral part of the continental countries and it is neither reasonable, prudent, nor possible that Mexico ignore jurisdiction and utilization and control over it in the part pertaining to its territory in the two oceans.

It is now known as a result of various scientific investigations that natural resources, minerals, liquids and gases, phosphate, calcium, hydro-carbons, etc., of incalculable value exist in that continental shelf and their legal incorporation into the national patrimony is vital and cannot be deferred.

On the other hand, it is of equal urgency that the Mexican State, which nature has endowed with fishery resources of extraordinary richness, such as those found, not to mention others, in the maritime zones along Lower California, should be protected, utilized and developed adequately, and this urgency increases at the present time, when the world, impoverished and in need because of the war imposed by totalitarianism, must develop its food production to the maximum.

In the years before the war the Western Hemisphere had to watch the permanent fishing fleets of countries outside of the continent engage in immoderate and exhaustive exploitation of this great wealth, which although certainly it should be helpful to the well-being of the world, it is evident that it belongs primarily to the country possessing it and to the continent to which it pertains. By reason of its inherent nature it is indispensable that its protection be under the control and vigilance of the State as far as those places or zones indicated by science for the development of the resources of the high seas and independently of the distance that separates them from the coast.

Based upon these reasons, the Government of the Republic claims all of the platform or continental shelf adjacent to its coasts and each and every one of the known and unknown natural resources that may be found there, and (the Government of Mexico) is proceeding towards the vigilance, utilization and control of the necessary fishery protection zones for the conservation of that source of well-being.

The foregoing does not signify that the Mexican Government pretends not to recognize the legitimate rights of third parties on a basis of reciprocity, or that the rights of free navigation on the high seas may be affected, inasmuch as the only course that it is pursuing is to conserve these resources for national, continental and world well-being.

The government is issuing orders to the proper authorities, in order that they may proceed to formulate the corresponding legal processes and to celebrate the treaties that may be necessary.

Mexico, D.F., October 29, 1945.

The President of the Republic,
MANUEL AVILA CAMACHO.

'In the Nation is likewise vested the ownership of the waters of the seas covering the continental shelf and the submarine platforms and, in addition, the territorial waters in the extent and terms fixed by International Law; those of the lagoons and estuaries of the beaches; those of the inland lakes of natural formation directly connected with streams having a constant flow; those of the principal rivers or tributary brooks from the point at which the first permanent water appears, to their mouths, whether they run to the sea, or cross two or more states; those of intermittent streams the principal branch of which crosses two or more states; the waters of rivers, brooks or ravines which serve as boundaries of national territory, or of the states; the waters extracted from mines; and the river beds or banks of the lakes and streams mentioned above, to the extent fixed by law. Any other stream of water, not included in those mentioned above, shall be considered an integral part of the private property which it crosses; but the utilization of waters, when they pass from one piece of property to another, shall be considered as of public welfare and shall be subject to the rulings issued by the states.

'In the instances mentioned in the three previous paragraphs, the ownership of the Nation is inalienable and imprescriptible and concessions shall only be granted by the Federal Government to individuals or civil or commercial corporations organized in accordance with Mexican laws, on condition that regular works are established for the exploitation of the elements in question and the requirements of the laws are complied with. With reference to petroleum and solid, liquid or gaseous hydro-carbons, concessions shall not be granted, and the Regulatory Law covering this shall specify the form in which the Nation shall carry out the exploitation of these products.....'

The meeting was adjourned at 4:25 p.m.

APPENDIX XXXVII

EXCERPTS FROM TARIFF FOR GENERAL IMPORT DUTIES

.....
GENERAL RULES FOR THE APPLICATION OF THE IMPORT TARIFF

RULE NUMBER 2

Determination of net, legal and gross weights

I. NET WEIGHT.

By net weight is understood the intrinsic weight of the merchandise, without cores, containers or wrapping.

II. LEGAL WEIGHT.

By legal weight is understood that of the goods, including that of the ordinary containers in which they are packed inside the outer packing which serves as a general receptacle.

When an article is fastened by means of screws, nails, rope or cable, to boards of the outer container, the legal weight of the merchandise should be computed excluding such boards.

For the computation of legal weight, the straw, excelsior, paper scraps or any other loose waste matter with which the goods have been packed in the outer container should not be included; but with reference to such waste matter, the regulations issued for reasons of hygiene or agricultural defense should be observed.

The crosspieces and framework used to secure the goods within the outer container should not be included in the legal weight.

III. GROSS WEIGHT.

By gross weight is understood that of the merchandise with its ordinary containers, inner and outer.

The waste matter used in packing the goods shall also be included in the gross weight.

RULE NUMBER 3

Containers

I. ORDINARY INNER CONTAINERS.

The boxes, barrels, baskets, receptacles, cases, coverings, wrappings, cores, hoops and binding are considered ordinary inner containers; also, in general, everything which is used in the packing or adjustment of the goods which they contain, or for precautions of security necessary for their transport.

When the merchandise contained in ordinary containers is taxed according to net weight, number, or measure, such containers shall not be considered.

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

II. ORDINARY OUTER CONTAINERS.

The ordinary inner containers are considered as ordinary outer containers.

Outer sacks of pitched or tarred cloth, paper, or rigid vegetable fiber cloth or of smooth white cotton, although having printed marks or figures of any kind; except in instances in which the (tariff) sections specifically state that they are to be declared separately, as well as when the sacks are made of double cloth.

Coverings for packages made of the types of cloth mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and those which in themselves make up the outer container of this type of parcel, are also considered ordinary outer containers.

Cases and crates directly placed in the container with no intervening material to secure them are considered as a single container since the aggregate forms the general receptacle. Glass containers with or without packing, protected by cases, crates, baskets or other receptacles, as long as the two form a general receptacle, are also considered the outer container.

III. SPECIAL INNER CONTAINERS.

There are considered as special inner containers, those which obviously do not belong to the merchandise contained in them, but which have commercial value in themselves by virtue of being a deluxe container or of having a use other than that given them, and in instances when upon evaluation apart from their contents, they are subject to higher duties, they must be declared so that the correct rate may be applied. In case such containers, evaluated separately from their contents, are subject to the same or lower duties, they shall be considered as ordinary containers.

IV. SPECIAL OUTER CONTAINERS.

There are considered as special outer containers those which come under the description in the preceding paragraph; and regardless of whether they are subject to higher, the same, or lower duties than those corresponding to the merchandise contained in them, they shall be declared for assessment at the rate which is applicable to them.

V. CLOTH SACKS OR BAGS SERVING AS INNER CONTAINERS.

When the merchandise is contained in any kind of cloth sacks, fitted into the outer container which serves as a general receptacle for them, such sacks shall be considered as special inner containers.

VI. CLOTH SACKS OR BAGS SERVING AS OUTER CONTAINERS.

Cloth sacks or bags serving as outer containers, except those classified as ordinary outer containers, are considered special outer containers, subject to the corresponding duties.

VII. CLOTH SERVING AS COVERING FOR INNER CONTAINERS.

Cloth used as covering for merchandise or for inner containers, fitted into the outer container serving as a general receptacle for them, shall be considered as a special inner container, with the exception of that which is pitched, tarred, oiled or rubberized, imported in the necessary quantities.

VIII. CLOTH SERVING AS COVERING FOR OUTER CONTAINERS.

Cloth used as outer covering of the container serving as a general receptacle, shall be considered a simple wrapping for such container, if it is pitched or tarred, or if it is of heavy jute or of smooth, white cotton, even though it has any kind of marks or stamping; otherwise it must be declared and shall be subject to the corresponding duties.

MEXICAN FISHERY LEGISLATION

IX. FITTED CASES.

The tariff gives special duties for fitted cases. When the cases contain machines, apparatus, instruments or tools, they are considered as ordinary inner or outer containers, except upon specific mention in the tariff.

Similarly there are considered as ordinary inner or outer containers, unspecified cases containing goods dutiable according to legal weight, as long as the cases, evaluated apart from their contents, are subject to lower duties, since otherwise they shall be considered as special inner containers.

Cases containing goods dutiable according to net weight or by individual unit, shall be subject to the corresponding duties.
